INTERNATIONAL PRELIMINARY EXAMINATION REPORT

International application No.
PCT/US03/07081V. Reasoned statement under Rule 66.2(a)(ii) with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement*1. STATEMENT

Novelty (N)	Claims 1-25	YES
	Claims NONE	NO
Inventive Step (IS)	Claims NONE	YES
	Claims 1-25	NO
Industrial Applicability (IA)	Claims 1-25	YES

2. CITATIONS AND EXPLANATIONS

Claims 1-25 lack an inventive step under PCT Article 33(3) as being obvious over Bassler et al. (U.S. Patent No. 6,559,176, May 10, 2001) in view of Phadtare et al. (Database, Medline, Accession No. 2001274440, July 2001).

The claimed invention is directed to a method for regulating a gene in a microorganism comprising contacting with DHCP. The disclosure on page 3 states that the gene to be regulated includes a gene involved in the activity of autoinducer (AI-2). Bassler et al. teach autoinducer-2 analogs that regulate its activity and provides methods for inhibiting a quorum-sensing pathway of a microorganism, treatment methods and a pharmaceutical composition. It is known in the art that DHCP regulates quorum-sensing, although not explicitly taught by Bassler et al. However, Phadtare et al. teach a method using DHCP for gene regulation. Thus, the claimed invention is obvious.

Claims 1-25 meet industrial applicability under Article 33(4).
